Barre People Give Credit Where Credit Is Due.

People of Barre who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Barre. Here's Barre testimony:—

L. Hooker, 101 Prospect street, Barre, Vt., says: "Since I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, I have recommended them to at least fifty people and have heard everyone who has used them give them a word of praise. I suffered for a long time from kidney complaint and my condition finally became so serious that I was worried. My back ached most of the time and an annoying kidney weakness existed. I used every remedy that was brought to my attention, but without deriving any benefit until I took Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Drown's drug store. At that time I used five boxes and was benefited. I have since taken Doan's Kidney Pills off and on, and they have acted as a tonic to my kidneys, keeping them in a normal condition." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Quakers Never "Nervous."
It is not in my memory that a professing Quaker ever came into my hands to be treated for nervousness. If the opinion I have already stated is often correct, namely, that want of control of the emotions and the over-expression of the feelings are prime causes of nervousness, then the fact that discipline of the emotions is a lesson early and constantly taught by Friends would help to account for the infrequency of this disorder among them and add emphasis to the belief in such causation.—From "Self Help For Nervous Women," by Dr. Kearsley

D.F. DAVIS' SUCCESS

Great Popularity of Plan to Sell Medicine at Half Price and Guarantee a Cure.

D. F. Davis, the enterprising druggist, rather than await the ordinary methods of introduction, urged the Dr. Howard Co. to secure a quick sale for their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia by offering the regular 50c bottle at half price.

The wonderful success of this plan was a great surprise even to Mr. Davis, and to-day there are scores of people right here in Barre who are using and praising this remarkable remedy.

In addition to selling a 50c bottle of Dr. Howard's specific for 25c, D. F. Davis has so much faith in the remedy that he will refund the money to anyone whom it does not cure.

This latest achievement of science is of great value in curing sick headaches. Thousands of women are to-day free from that painful disease, solely through the use of this specific.

AN IMPORTANT SEARCH

By ALENE EDNA MAY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"Those cases of poisons found in the stomachs of the dead," said the detective, "with the consequent conviction of some one who is charged with murder, have resulted in the hanging of many an innocent person. The prosecuting attorney whose business it is to convict those brought up for trial by the state has only to prove a motive for wishing the deceased out of the way and presence of poison in the stomach to win his case. Another matter strengthens it; that is, proving that the accused bought the poison; though there are instances in which this is not considered absolutely necessary to swing the accused."

"I work largely for attorneys. Bates, Wakeley & Scrimser have given me a lot of work to do, and I have furnished them with facts that have enabled them to win a number of cases. They are criminal lawyers, and most of the evidence I have given them has been used, I am happy to say, to secure the acquittal of persons accused of crime. I don't know anything that gives me more satisfaction than saving an innocent person from punishment."

"One day Mr. Scrimser sent for me and said:
"We have been retained to defend Mrs. Edith Townsend, charged with poisoning her husband, a man she was induced by her parents to marry when she was eighteen years old. Townsend was very rich and a miser. His wife, who is only twenty-four years old, is a beautiful woman. At the time of her marriage she had been engaged to a young man not able to support her, and she loved him instead of her husband. Her husband's relatives, who would like to secure his property, have worked up the case against her. A note she wrote the man she had been engaged to, Horace Truesdale, telling him she would not see him so long as her husband lived, is all the evidence they have been able to adduce to prove her intimacy with him during her married life. But they have proved that on one occasion a month previous to her husband's death she bought a drug that was found upon analysis in her husband's stomach. She said that when she bought this drug her husband sent her for a prescription the nature of which she knew nothing. I believe that he was taking a drug for a stimulant and that it eventually killed him. Here is the technical name for it. He gave me a slip of paper. I wish you to discover if he was not in the habit of buying it. Remember that a woman's good name, perhaps her life, depends upon your efforts."

"I went at the matter systematically, first procuring a list of the drug stores within reach of Mr. Townsend's residence. He had lived in his country place surrounded by villages in which there were drug stores. If he wished to conceal the fact of his purchases he had only to drive to one of these towns sufficiently distant that he should not be known there, buy his drug and carry it home himself. Though it was a poison when taken in large quantities, it was prescribed by physicians, and an order for it was not in all cases essential."

"I visited every drug store within a radius of twenty miles from his home and talked with every proprietor and clerk in all of them. Not one of them could remember any person answering to my description of Mr. Townsend, and all declared that no such person had ever to their knowledge visited their store. I hit upon the place where his wife had bought the poison she was charged with having procured, but this had all been worked up by another detective."

"I went to Mr. Scrimser and reported my failure."

"Try the wholesale druggists," he said.

"Why should the man have bought the drug at wholesale?" I asked.

"He was mean enough to buy his table salt at wholesale," he replied.

"To make a search of the wholesale drug stores was quite another proposition. It was equivalent to a hunt in every wholesale drug house in the United States and Mr. Townsend might have bought the drug in Canada. Indeed, if he wished to conceal his purchases Canada would be the better field. I first looked into the express offices in the places where packages might have been delivered to him. Nothing sent him that could have been a drug appeared on the books of the express companies, nor was any such receipt on file."

"The only hope left for Mrs. Townsend was that her husband had ordered the drug sent by mail. I procured a list of all the wholesale drug houses in the United States and Canada and sent a letter to each asking if they had ever filled orders for the drug found in his stomach, giving also the reason why I wished to know. It was an enormous work for them to hunt the matter up, but since a life might hang upon their efforts nearly all replied that they would make a thorough search."

"Do you know that three different drug houses, two in the United States and one in Canada, wrote me that on several occasions they had sent Townsend pound packages of the drug in question."

"That settled the matter. Mrs. Townsend was discharged."

FOOLED HIM BADLY.

Now He Kicks on Letters Written in the Third Person.

In one of the Paris restaurants a party of literary men were discussing the merits of various literary styles. One of them, Monsieur A., made a fierce attack on letters written in the third person, such as "Monsieur X. has the honor to inform"—and so on. Another of the party defended them, maintaining that they were not only more ceremonious, but that they were more polite.

"That's a good idea," replied Monsieur A. "The foundation of all politeness in letter writing is to express clearly what you mean to say. Now, nothing can be more ambiguous than these confounded notes in the third person. I will just tell you what happened to myself. I received from my friend D., the chief of division, a billet doux, which I will show you."

Taking the note from his pocket, Monsieur A. read as follows:

"Monsieur D., chief of division at the war office, hastens to inform his friend, Monsieur A., that he has just been named chevalier of the Legion of Honor."

"You can fancy my delight at reading this note," continued Monsieur A. "I was the happiest man in the world. I ran to an engraver and ordered him to make the flatterer addition to my cards, 'Monsieur A., Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.' I ran to a mercer's and bought a piece of the richest red ribbon for my buttonhole. I ran to the houses of my friends for the pleasure of receiving their congratulations. At last I ran to my friend D.'s. As soon as I caught sight of him I threw myself into his arms. 'Ah, my dear fellow,' I exclaimed, 'you have no idea what pleasure you have given me. How shall I ever thank you sufficiently?'"

"You are an excellent fellow, my worthy A., to sympathize thus with my happiness."

"Thank you for that expression; the decoration is mine, and the happiness is yours."

"How is that? Have you received the order?"

"Certainly; have I not?"

"No, my good friend; 'tis I who am now made chevalier."

"You?"

"Yes. You deserve the honor more than I do, but nevertheless, it has been conferred on me."

"But you wrote me word that I had received the cross. I took his letter out of my pocket and showed it him. Alas! I now understood clearly what meaning I ought to assign to the ambiguous phrase. 'The deuce take you and your note,' I said to D. 'Instead of your affected and formal announcement in the third person, why could you not write to me simply and plainly, 'My dear friend, I have the pleasure of informing you that I now am made chevalier?'"

Sardine Fishing.

In sardine fishing there are many uncertainties. There is a twenty-eight foot rise and fall of tide in the bay of Fundy, and especially constructed wooden picket inclosures are staked out in the water to gather in the fish.

Last season a man erected an inclosure in what he supposed to be excellent fishing territory, but got nothing. He deplored his loss and for a time failed to go near it. "Why don't you seize it again?" somebody asked.

"What's the use?" he replied. "Let me try it," the other persisted. "Yes, and you may have all the fish you get."

The other man pulled out $1,700 worth at one haul.—Frank Leslie's.
